Purpose Driven Spaces

Mission-driven shared spaces or nonprofit centers are physical places, usually a building or a campus, where organizations intentionally share space for mutual benefit. These spaces take many forms, like:

- A welcome center for immigrants, putting them on the fast track to a successful life in a new country.
- A co-working space where small, community arts groups can access studio and theater space
- An office building that provides below market rent to keep nonprofits in the neighborhood they serve.

Shared infrastructure strengthens nonprofits of all shapes and sizes. According to a recent survey of executive directors within nonprofit centers:

State of the Shared Space Sector Survey

NCN has data on over 100 centers about all aspects of operation, from financial health to tenant impact, including the first staffing and salary information collected from the sector.
